MISS CECILIA FARLEY.

DIES OF BURNS

T. E. Bryant, of 210 East Marshall Street, chief engineer for the Richmond and Henrico Railway Company, died in the Virginia Hospital at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon of wounds and burns he received Friday night by the explosion of a steam pipe in the power-house on the James River near Louisville Street, Fulton. The explosion of the pipe hurled Bryant from a ladder on which he was standing, and in addition to being injured by the fall he was frightfully burned. Emergency treatment was administered by Dr. H. T. Hawkins, of the city ambulance, and Bryant was taken to the Virginia Hospital.

Audience Shouts and Cheers When Miss Cecelia Farley Is Acquitted.

SIMPLE STORY WINS JURY

She Had Been on Trial for Murder of Andrew Zollinger.

Columbus, Ohio, November 23.—Winner in one of the hardest battles ever fought by a woman of twenty-seven years, Cecelia Farley to-night flushed when asked to comment on the struggle she had made in court for her life, and said, simply:

"I'm glad. That is all I have to say."

Late this afternoon the woman was acquitted of the murder of Alvin E. Zollinger, the man who, she said, betrayed her and was attempting to prevent her making a happy marriage. Zollinger, a married man, was killed in the presence of Miss Farley, and Jerome Quigley, a hotel clerk, who was engaged to marry the girl he knew Zollinger had wronged.

Hurrying from the courtroom with her mother, who had remained at her side during the long trial, the woman went to the jail which has been her abode for five months, obtained her possessions there and then went home. There she and her mother planned their trip to Los Angeles, where Mrs. Farley formerly lived, and where she and her daughter will make their future home.

A remarkable demonstration followed the announcement of the jury's verdict this afternoon. When Paul Good, jury foreman, read the words, "Not guilty" the audience went wild. It shouted and clapped hands until Judge Evans sternly rapped for order and ordered the court bailiff to arrest all who had shouted. Although nearly every one in the room was guilty of shouting, the bailiff could not find any one to arrest.

The effect of three days on the witness stand plainly told on Miss Farley's appearance while she awaited the jury's verdict. On the stand she had told the innermost secrets of her life, relating the shameful incident in her life, and telling of the happy, innocent days that preceded her meeting with Zollinger ten years ago—when she was just turning seventeen—with a smile between each sentence.

She met Zollinger in a dance hall. Medical Club Meeting. The Richmond Academy of Medicine and Surgery will meet at the University College of Medicine next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. E. C. L. Miller will read a paper on the subject, "Theory and Practice of Immunity."

Dr. Hartman Recalls Cures Made By Old-Time Pe-ru-na

DR. S. B. HARTMAN.

I have been practicing medicine since 1855. Most of that time I have been using Pe-ru-na as my principal remedy. So many unexpected recoveries have been made by those for whom I have prescribed Pe-ru-na that it would take a large book to contain them all. They keep coming up to my mind one by one. Whether on my farm, or at home, whether playing with my grandchildren or conducting my large office business, these incidents of old-time Pe-ru-na cures steal in upon my memory unawares.

Take, for instance, a single case from the extensive list of similar cases in my diary of cases treated, as an example of the cures that Pe-ru-na used to make.

Mrs. T. S. Eberlein (then of Pittsburgh, Pa., afterwards of Keokuk, Iowa), during the year 1882 began to develop unusual symptoms of catarrh of the lungs. Cough was one of the first symptoms, which gradually grew worse in spite of all treatment. The sputa, at first slight, became abundant and purulent, occasionally streaked with blood. A rapid loss of flesh and flagging appetite filled her relatives with forebodings. The hectic flush, night sweats, and suppression of the menses, left no doubt as to the nature of her disease.

From the first physicians had been employed. Cough medicines, tonics, cod liver oil and stimulants were resorted to by her physicians without avail.

The first physician employed was Dr. Williams, Penn. Ave., Pittsburgh; Dr. Gilford, of Allegheny City, was next called; and then Dr. Riggs, of Pittsburgh.

During this history of conflict with this terrible disease frequent consultations were held, but nothing checked the steady progress of her malady. Not a doubt had existed in the minds of her physicians or friends as to the nature of her disease, nor as to its fatal termination. The repeated examinations of her lungs indicated the rapid strides with which she was nearing the end.

Her physicians were honored members of the medical fraternity, in whom Mrs. Eberlein's husband and family had perfect confidence. And the sorrow with which they listened to their decision that they had exhausted everything known to them in vain for the relief of the wife and mother of the afflicted household can be better imagined than described. As is common to this sort of patients, Mrs. Eberlein continued hopeful long after her attendants believed her to be beyond cure.

I was practicing at the time in Pittsburgh, and a fancy that I would be able to relieve her was, during her illness, repeatedly expressed by Mrs. Eberlein, but it was regarded as the merest whim; and, as they were employing the best medical talent the city afforded, no attention was paid to it. At last she became so weak and emaciated that an attendant was constantly at hand to lift her during the terrible coughing spells to which she was subjected, and which were frequently followed by alarming sinking spells, during which she was often thought to be dying. It was during one of these frightful paroxysms when her husband was supporting her tenderly and vainly trying to palliate her sufferings that she again expressed her belief that if Dr. Hartman were sent for he could relieve her.

Willing to indulge her in any wish, as she was thought to be dying by all, I was immediately sent for, but being very busy, was not able to respond until late in the evening of the afternoon on which I was sent for. It was not expected that she would survive until I could reach her home, but hope kept her alive until I came.

It would be difficult to imagine a more discouraging case for a doctor to undertake to cure than Mrs. Eberlein's at the moment of my first visit. Let me describe her symptoms.

A drawn, pinched countenance of a deathly pallor, and livid lips. Sunken, fixed, staring eyes, with a glassy brightness. Wasted in body to a mere shadow. Pulse wholly imperceptible at the wrist, but the heart feebly fluttering. Extremities cold and clammy, finger nails blue, breathing hurried and gasping, utterly exhausted and hopeless. It certainly seemed as if I had only arrived in time to see her die.

The first question of the distracted husband was, "Is my wife dying?" But my undaunted faith in the efficacy of Pe-ru-na is such, even in this awful emergency, that I replied:

"Sir, you and I are now in the vanguard of life; it may happen that this lady will live to see us buried."

After a hasty examination of the case I prescribed Pe-ru-na to be taken every hour, and if she was not better in the morning to let me know.

It was two weeks before I again heard from the case, when the husband entered my office, radiant with joy, and, not waiting for the usual salutations, exclaimed: "Doctor, my wife is well!"

"Oh, no, you mean she is better," I replied. But the enthusiastic husband insisted that his wife was "well and the heartiest eater at the table."

The fact was that, while she had made astonishing improvement, she was obliged to continue the use of Pe-ru-na many months. In less than a year she was entirely well, and has remained so since, and her treatment from the beginning to the end was Pe-ru-na and nothing else.

To have seen her at the time of the first visit it would have been impossible to believe that any medicine or other earthly power could have saved her.

This case is no more unusual or astonishing than a great many others that my list contains, not only of diseases of the lungs, but of all mucous surfaces.

Cases of dyspepsia, diarrhea and dysentery which have withstood all other treatment have yielded at once by the use of Pe-ru-na.

Numerous cases of Bright's disease of the kidneys, acute catarrh and rheumatism, female diseases, that had been treated locally for years, were instantly relieved and finally recovered by Pe-ru-na. In short, every disease affecting any mucous membrane of the body that has not already gone beyond all earthly help, frequently makes astonishing recovery.

As a general tonic and appetizer Pe-ru-na has no superior. It is a certain remedy for worn-out or tired-out human nature. Cases of nervous prostration, loss of vitality and sleeplessness are all treated by Pe-ru-na with such undeviating success that wherever it is used it ranks as the greatest tonic known.

In future articles I will recite other cases of similar interest. In doing so I shall not allow the slightest exaggeration or fiction to mar the realism which the simple facts alone give to any narrative of this kind.

Pe-ru-na, Man-a-lin and La-cu-pia manufactured by the Pe-ru-na Company, Columbus, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Many persons inquire for The Old-Time Pe-ru-na. They want the Pe-ru-na that their Fathers and Mothers used to take. The old Pe-ru-na is now called Katarno. If your druggist or dealer does not keep it for sale write the Katarno Company, Columbus, Ohio, and they will tell you all about it.

ANNUAL DEBATE WILL NOT BE HELD

Chapel Hill, N. C., November 23.—The debate scheduled between the University of North Carolina and Washington and Lee University for December 14, was abruptly called off by the debating council of the Lexington Institution yesterday.

THREE ARRESTED

Three young men, S. D. Puryear, twenty-four years old; H. P. Clarke, twenty-two, and Judson Collier, twenty, were arrested yesterday by Mounted Officers Emattwood and Flourey as suspicious characters, suspected of having committed highway robbery.

The police believe that these men are guilty of entering the confectionery store of Mrs. John Joseph, 2000 Beverly Street, on Friday night, and while two of them held her fast the third rifled the cash drawer. When all of the money, about $150, had been pocketed by the third, Mrs. Joseph was released, and the trio hurriedly left the store after they had threatened her with bodily harm if she made an outcry.

Yesterday the matter was reported to Police Headquarters and the arrest of the alleged highwaymen followed. The prisoners deny the charge. Mrs. Joseph will probably be called upon to-day to identify them.

HENRICO SCHOOLS CLOSE FIRST FAIR

Barton Heights and Highland Park Led County in Number of Points Scored.

In the competition between the schools in Henrico County, to see which one would score the highest number of points in the exhibits at the school fair, which was held yesterday and Friday in the Ginter Park School building, Barton Heights and Highland Park tied for first place, each school making ninety-seven points. Highland Springs was next, with ninety-one; Varina fourth, with seventy-seven, and Ginter Park fifth, with sixty-two.

Glen Lea School took the prize for having the most artistically decorated booth. Highland Park was a close second, but because Glen Lea has only four teachers and Highland Park thirteen, the decision was given to the smaller school. Ginter Park was third in this competition. Tree Hill had the best exhibit among the one-room schools.

About 1,000 visitors went to the fair yesterday and looked over the exhibits. The proportion of school pupils in attendance yesterday was greater than on Friday, and the ratio of grown-up correspondingly smaller. Among the visitors to the fair yesterday morning was State Superintendent J. D. Eggleston, Jr.

The exhibits were creditable in every sense, said Superintendent Eggleston in commenting on the event. "I was especially interested in the industrial exhibits, notably the corn from the boys and the butter and sewing from the girls. Another item which I noted was the number of rabbit-traps. We have had between forty and fifty school fairs in Virginia this fall, and I suppose that 50,000 people have attended them and seen the work we are doing. They are important as leading to the introduction of definite industrial work in the schools. The pupils are ready and willing to devote their efforts to that kind of endeavor when they know that prizes are going to be given them, and that their parents will view the results of their work."

The principal events of the day yesterday were the races in the athletic department on the field of Union Theological Seminary. It was that feature which attracted so many of the younger pupils of the schools.

The fair closed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but not until a late hour were the last vestiges of the decorations and exhibits removed from the building. Superintendent A. B. Wright, to whose efforts so much of the success of the fair is due, said last night that he was gratified at the results of the exhibition.
